

L'éveil

When he was thirteen years old, he was telling himself: "When I will have my BAC I will go in a preparatory class". He believed him, but he was doing all the necessary efforts to hit his goal. They were two children in the family and Pierre, the older, had succeed to be accepted in one of the better France school. What a luck!

Few of years later, he was finding himself in the same situation as his older brother. It been years that he waits this and was not disappointed. He was finally given the opportunity to study the world of politics and economics in more depth than in high school. Of course, he had to work hard, but it wasn't the first time that he had been asked to try a challenge. Thanks to sport he was used to do tests. Moreover, didn't he have a good sense of humor? This allowed him not to give up when he was faced with failure.
